

Making Inferences

Record your group's inference and which details from the story that helped you determine the inference.

Zebra had "begun to turn into an eagle" and Zebra used to imagine that he was soaring like an eagle when he ran downhill.

Mr. Morgan told him to pay attention to the geography inside the classroom and not to the geography outside the classroom.

"In this class, young man, you will concentrate your attention upon the earth, not upon the sky."
